

G. Riley Mills is the co-founder of Pinnacle Performance Company and co-author of The Pin Drop Principle and its follow-up The Bullseye Principle (both published by John Wiley & Sons). He was recently included in the list of "Top Leadership Speakers" by Inc. Magazine and has taught effective communication to executives and CEOs on six continents. He presented his TEDx session "Are We Killing Communication?" at the Shanghai American School, Shanghai, China.

Mills has guest-lectured or delivered keynotes at such events and institutions as Columbia University, London Business School, Association of Training and Development (international conference), SHRM (international conference), New York University, Utrecht University (Netherlands), Singapore Management University, MENA Conference (Saudi Arabia), Manchester United and the Royal Household at Buckingham Palace. Mills has written for Forbes and Fast Company.